AXPONA 2018 Show Report – Day 1

A new company, Pneuance Audio, has created a new way to mechanically isolate your components. Where the competition isolates only in the vertical direction, the NP-1's isolate in both the vertical and horizontal directions. Interestingly enough, it uses air compression so you actually use a pump. It was very convincing (and "cute") demo. One thing I noticed with most isolation products... they usually uplift the sound to create a quieter background at the expense of thinning out the sound. The NP-1 seems to be able to do this while keeping a full-bodied sound with natural timbre. I'll have to get some in for review.
